Secy. Hull Seeks Law and Order in World Relations

Takes Cautious Thrust at Dictator Governments' Policies

U. S. CAN'T ESCAPE

Our Country Threatened in Today's Small World, Hull Reminds

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—Cordell Hull, secretary of state, urged upon all nations Tuesday night adoption of "a comprehensive program embracing both economic reconstruction and revitalizing of principles which are indispensable for restoration of order under law."

He laid a program before a Europe made jittery by Hitler's mobilization of 1,000,000 men for army maneuvers on the Czech and French borders and Mussolini's speech last Thursday indicating a European war was approaching.

Hull spoke over a national broadcast, choosing a moment regarded as crucial in Europe to throw America's moral weight on the side of peace. He addressed himself to a world which he said was becoming "smaller and smaller" with the result that "it will soon no longer be possible for some nations to choose and follow the way of force and for other nations at the same time to choose and follow the way of reason. All will have to go in one direction and by one way."

His speech was sent by short-wave radio to Europe and Latin America and was radioed by the State Department to American diplomatic representatives abroad so that they, at their discretion, might present it to foreign governments.

Seven Principal Points

The secretary's program included economic reconstruction, adherence to international law, respect for treaties combined with orderly modification of provisions of treaties, abstention from use of force and peaceful settlement of differences, reduction of armaments, cultural exchanges among nations and, generally, international co-operation.

Hull told the nations that no one of them, including our own, "can avoid participation in determining which course (force or reason) will be taken." He added that "consciously or unconsciously, every country is throwing the weight of its attitude and action, positive or negative, toward one course or the other."

Officials said he was speaking particularly to the smaller nations which have been coming under the sway of Germany, especially in the Balkans. Hitherto his remarks have been pointed toward the big dictatorships. Now he sought a win over to the democratic countries the lesser nations whose form of government and whose policy remain in doubt.

Civilization Menaced

Hull mentioned no names, but officials believe he had Germany, Japan and Italy in mind when he said:

"Disintegration of the structure of world order under law and the abandonment or repudiation of the principles underlying it have proceeded with staggering rapidity."

"Today, invasion of territory of sovereign states, destruction of lawfully constituted governments and forcible seizure of hitherto independent political entities, interference in the internal affairs of other nations, wholesale growing disregard of universally accepted principles of international law, attempts to adjust international differences by armed force rather than by methods of peaceful settlement, contemptuous brushing aside of rules of morality—all these appalling manifestations of disintegration seriously threaten the very foundation of our civilization."

U. S. Is Not Safe

Hull brought the danger home to the average American by saying: "No one of us can be sure that his country or even his home is safe. Conditions of wholesale chaos will not develop overnight; but it is clear that the present trend is in that direction and the longer this drift continues the greater becomes the danger that the whole world may be sucked into the maelstrom of unregulated and savage economic, political and military competition and conflict."

"Whatever may be our own wishes and hopes, we cannot when there is trouble elsewhere expect to remain unaffected. When destruction, impoverishment and starvation afflict other areas, we cannot, no matter how hard we may try, escape impairment of our own economic well-being. When freedom is destroyed over increasing areas elsewhere, our ideals of individual liberty, our most cherished political and social institutions are jeopardized."

Hence he pleaded for American support of the program as "the only program which can turn the tide of lawlessness and place the world firmly upon the one and only roadway that can lead to enduring peace and security."

Governor Leslie Gets Nomination in Wyoming

CHEYENNE, Wyo.—(AP)—Governor Leslie A. Miller was assured renomination Wednesday on returns from Tuesday's Democratic primary.

Congress has authorized construction of the project to tame the Red river, generate power and constitute a new and important link in the system of flood control works designed to control floods in the lower Mississippi valley.

Plans for the dam have been drawn and the War Department says it would like to see the job started. No money has been provided to begin work and there is no definite assurance when it will be.

Start Late Next Year

If the next Congress makes an appropriation for the project, work may be started late in 1939, army engineers say. There is no possibility of its starting earlier, they explain, unless money becomes available from relief funds or some other unexpected source.

The 1938 Flood Control Act authorized construction of the Denison dam as part of a five-year general flood control program.

Though no money was appropriated for the authorization was in itself a victory for Texas, Oklahoma, Louisiana and Arkansas. Congress members, state officials and private citizens who worked to obtain it.

Could Produce Power

Army engineers have disclosed that plans for the Denison reservoir, to be located on the Red river six miles northwest of Denison, Texas, contemplate a dam exceeded only in size by the Fort Peck, Bonneville, Grand Coulee and Boulder projects, and which like these enterprises, would be capable of producing hydro-electric energy.

The Denison dam will back up water in the Red and Washita rivers and create a reservoir which will submerge 200,000 acres and slow down the flow of the Red river in flood time. It will have a maximum height of 190 feet and be 15,000 feet long and drain 38,600 square miles above it—more than half the Red river drainage area.

The reservoir water, backed up in storage when floods threaten will be released in sufficient quantity to assure an even downstream flow without creating an overflow menace.

But Gen. M. C. Tyler of the Engineer's Corps has predicted that Louisiana will receive two-fifths of the benefit from the reservoir and Arkansas, Oklahoma and Texas one-fifth each.

The engineers have estimated the cost of the Denison project, exclusive of the land cost at about $42,000,000. Payment of local damages will require about $3,700,000 and about $8,000,000 will be spent for acquisition of necessary land to which the government will have full title.

REBELS TURN FASCIST

To Begin Filing of Applications for Subsidy Payments

All Farmers Who Complied With 1938 Act Are Eligible

3 CENTS ON 1937 CROP

Applications May Be Filled Out at the County Agent's Office

BY CLIFFORD L. SMITH

Hempstead County Agent

Farmers may call at the county agent's office and sign application for their 3-cent subsidy payment.

Farmers who grew cotton in 1937 and who have complied with the 1938 Agricultural Conservation program will be eligible for price adjustments on the 1937 crop.

Farmers who planted cotton in 1937, but who are not farming this year, will also be eligible for these payments, he said.

Payment will be made on 60 per cent of the base production for the farm in 1937.

Payments on cotton sold prior to September 10 last year will be made on the basis of the difference between the average price on the date of sale at the 10 spot markets and 12 cents. That is, if the cotton was sold on August 31, 1937, and the average price on the 10 spot markets was 10 cents, the farmer would be paid two cents a pound.

Payments on cotton sold after September 10 will be made at the rate of three cents a pound, since after that date the average price on the 10 spot markets exceeded 9 cents on only a few days, the county agent explained.

The checks will be made to each separate producer on the farm, he said. The tenants on each farm will be paid according to the acreage that was planted by each. It is expected that the payments will be made late in September or early in October.

Plan Is Simple

The farmers who have not overplanted their acreage allotments to cotton will find the procedure of marketing their cotton under the marketing quota plan to be very simple.

Practically all of the farmers in the county have kept within their allotments, he said.

The farmer who has kept within his allotments will be issued a white marketing card, which will indicate to buyers and ginners that the holder of the card may sell his entire crop and any cotton which he has on hand from previous crops without payment of tax.

After securing the marketing card it will be necessary for the farmer to present it at the gin at the time the first of his cotton is ginned, so that certain information may be filed on the gin. It will also be necessary for him to present the card any time he offers his cotton for sale.

These are the only requirements of the marketing quota program for the farmer who has kept within his acreage allotment, the county agent said.

Farmers who have overplanted their cotton acreage allotments should understand the provisions of the marketing quota program thoroughly so that they may market their crops to the best advantage. No farmer who has overplanted will be eligible for cotton price adjustments on the 1937 crop or for soil conserving payments under the 1938 program.

Only a few farmers in Hempstead county have overplanted their allotments, Mr. Smith said. These farmers will be given a red marketing card showing the number of pounds of cotton which they may sell without payment of tax.

However, in the case of a farm on which the acreage allotment was overplanted, but on which not more than 1,000 pounds of lint cotton was produced, the entire crop can be marketed without payment of tax.

The Actual Yield

If a producer has exceeded his acreage allotment, but the county committee estimates that the production in 1938 on the actual acreage planted to cotton will not exceed the normal production on the acreage allotment, a red marketing card will be issued showing the amount he can sell tax free, and the farmer will not be taxed unless the actual yield exceeds the amount shown on the card.

The producer may pay the tax in advance to the county committee if he wishes to do so, either in cash or posting a bond for payment, the county agent said. Otherwise, the tax of two cents a pound will be paid to the buyer of the cotton, and may be deducted from the sale price. The buyer will remit the tax collected to the county committee, the county agent explained.

The holder of a red marketing card should present the card each time he takes cotton the gin and each time he offers it for sale.

The producer may appeal to the county review committee concerning any adjustments he believes are in order, the county agent said.

Refuse Cut License

The ordinance committee unanimously recommended that the present license fee on theaters remain the same. The fee is $75 per year, payable quarterly.

R. V. McGinnis, owner of the New theater, appeared before the council about two weeks ago and urged a reduction.

To Discuss Sewerage

A special committee of the council and other city officials will meet at the city hall at 5 o'clock Thursday afternoon to discuss extension of the city's sewerage lines in the western part of the city.

The committee, headed by Mayor Graves, also includes Kenneth G. Hamilton, Carter Johnson, C. E. Taylor, C. C. Collins, Arch Moore and C. E. Cassidy.

The council concluded the meeting Tuesday night with a discussion of the operation of loud speakers in Hope, used on automobiles and in some business establishments in downtown Hope.

A license fee was brought up, but no definite action was taken.

8 U. S. Officials Charged 'Radical'

They Defend Membership in "League for Peace and Democracy"

WASHINGTON.—Representative Mason, Illinois Republican and member of the house committee investigating subversive activities, named eight government officials Wednesday as "acknowledged members" of the American League for Peace and Democracy, which he said had connections with the Communist party.

Mason made his charge during testimony of H. L. Chailaux, American Legion official, concerning communist activities in the United States.

The officials named were: Harry Lambertson, assistant Rural Electrification Administrator, Dallas W. Smythe, of the Central Statistical Board.

Fred Silcox, head of Forest Service, Robert Marshall, official of the Public Lands Service of the Department of Agriculture.

Oscar Chapman, assistant Secretary of the Interior, John Curmody, Rural Electrification Administrator, Mary Anderson, director of the Woman's Bureau, Alice Barrows of the Office of Education.

Smythe, who said he was vice-president of the League for Democracy and Peace, commenting on the charge said:

"It is a matter of common knowledge that our organization is not communist; and our records are always visible for proof."

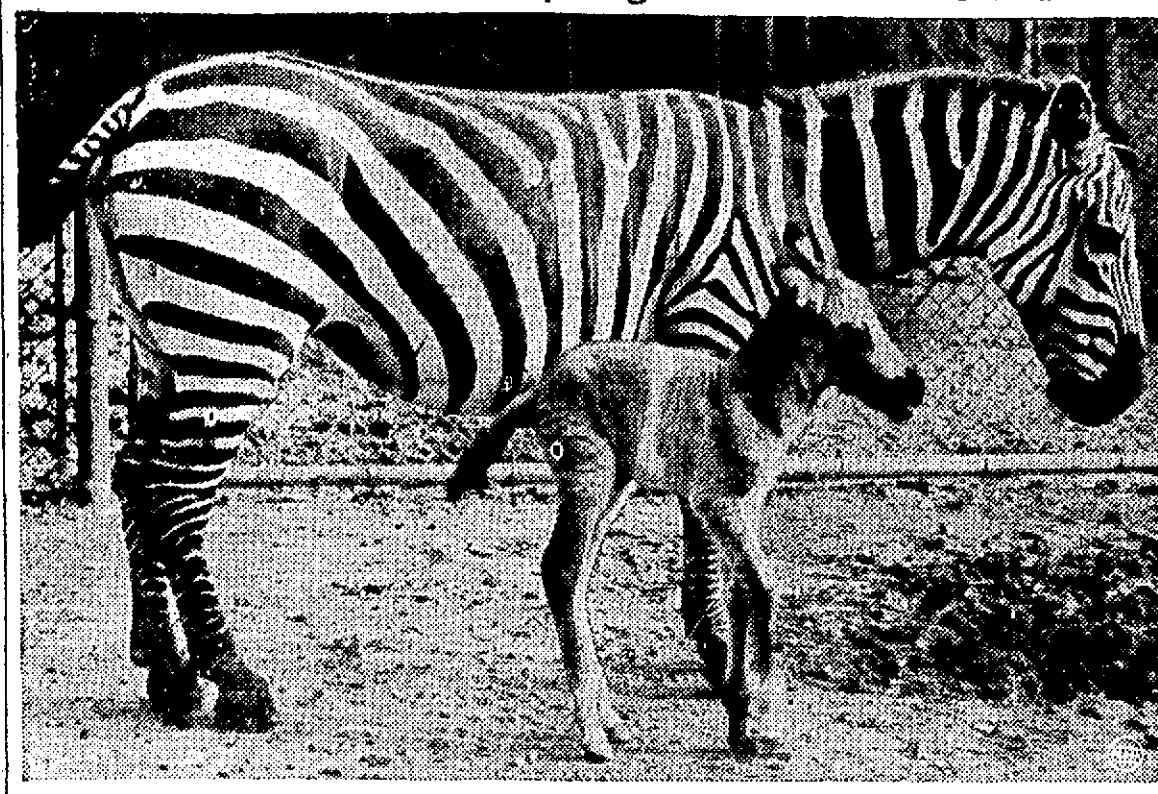

Premium Is Paid for First Cotton

Frank Rowe Awarded $45 by Hope Business Firms

Business firms of Hope donated approximately $45 in premiums to Frank Rowe for producing the first bale of cotton in Hempstead county this year.

The premiums came in cash and merchandise. Mr. Rowe had the cotton ginned August 12 at Cook's gin in Hope. Since then he has had two other bales ginned.

Washington Files High Court Appeal

Asks Suspension of Order Moving County Seat to Hope

LITTLE ROCK.—(AP)—Residents of Hempstead county "who are fighting removal of the county seat from Washington to Hope filed in the Arkansas Supreme Court Wednesday a petition for stay of judgment and suspension of the removal order issued in county court."

The petitioners questioned the validity of the election in which the voters approved the removal action, claiming many persons voted who were not qualified electors.

They asked that the removal order be stayed pending a proposed bond issue for the erection of a new courthouse.

But He Denies Letter Over Signature to Federal Employees

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—The senate campaign expenditures committee announced Tuesday that if a letter, seeking contributions to the Democratic campaign committee in Pennsylvania recently over a signature purporting to be that of Senator Guffey, chairman of the state Democratic campaign committee.

The letter, addressed to "Yellow Democrat" was mailed in Pennsylvania recently over a signature purporting to be that of Senator Guffey, chairman of the state Democratic campaign committee.

Chairman Sheppard (Dem. Tex.) said he had been informed by R. H. Bailey, Jr., secretary of Senator Guffey, that Bailey had communicated with the senator in France and had been informed Guffey had no knowledge of the letter.

Sheppard said the committee learned through a Philadelphia newspaper articles that the letter was mailed to federal employees, but had no first hand information.

"In view of Senator Guffey's absence in Europe and the statement by a member of his office staff that the senator had no knowledge of the issuance of the letter and did not authorize it, the committee thinks it proper to defer action on the matter until Senator Guffey returns," a committee statement said.

Treasury Takes Hand

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—The senate campaign expenditures committee asked the Treasury Tuesday to investigate reports that certain Internal Revenue Department employees were politically active in the Arkansas senatorial primary election.

The committee has been investigating complaints by Representative John L. McClellan, defeated for the Democratic senatorial nomination by Senator Hattie W. Caraway, but has not made them public.

A brief announcement said: "A progress report was made on Arkansas and the committee voted to continue the investigation there. The committee also voted to ask the Treasury Department to conduct an investigation of alleged political activities by certain employees of the Internal Revenue Department in Arkansas in connection with the senatorial campaign."

The committee made no further comment concerning Arkansas.

Adkins Declines Comment

LITTLE ROCK.—Homer M. Adkins, Internal Revenue collector for Arkansas, declined comment Tuesday night when advised that the senate campaign committee was investigating reports that certain Internal Revenue Department employees were politically active in the Arkansas senatorial primary election.

12th Torso Murder Startles Cleveland Lake Shore District

BULLETIN

CLEVELAND, Ohio.—(AP)—Detectives found an arm and a leg and all bones Wednesday on Cleveland's lake front dump, which Coroner R. Gerber said were parts of the body of the 12th victim of the city's mad "torso killer."

The coroner said he was satisfied after investigation, that no 13th victim was represented. Earlier he expressed belief that the bone collection gathered in two days might be from three persons.

CLEVELAND, Ohio.—(AP)—Coroner Samuel R. Gerber said Wednesday he believed various parts of human torsos found on the lake front were from three persons rather than two.

This would bring to 13 the number of "torso murders."

Meanwhile detectives, searching the spot where parts of the bodies were found Tuesday, discovered another large pile of human bones. Coroner Gerber said he was unable to say immediately whether these bones represented still another victim.

Third Term Talk Heard in Capital

Speculation Aroused by Lack of Potential Other Candidates

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—A report of strong sentiment in the West for a third term for President Roosevelt brought renewed discussion among politicians Tuesday of the possibility he may run again.

Senator Murray (Dem. Mont.) said that many voters in the West want Mr. Roosevelt to have a third term and that he believed the president would be "guided by the need for continuing his program." He added: "I would support the president for a third term and work actively for him if he decided to seek it."

Another Montana Democrat, Representative Jerry J. O'Connell said in Los Angeles he was in sight who could "successfully carry on" the program of the president and that he believed Mr. Roosevelt would be convinced to run.

Italy Doesn't Like Thrust at Fascists—Speech Censored There

PARIS, France.—(AP)—The Spanish insurgents were reported Wednesday to have definitely cast their lot with Italy and Germany, perhaps thereby ending the hopes of Great Britain and France to withdraw foreign volunteers from the civil war.

While Insurgent Generalissimo Francisco Franco's answer to the British plan of sending foreign fighters home from Spain remained a secret, insurgent informants in Paris predicted the terms may mean the end of the cherished non-intervention scheme designed to halt "Europe's little war."

Dispatches from Rome, on the other hand, told of mounting Fascist displeasure over the speech, which was not distributed to Italian papers by the semi-official news agency Stefani.

F. D. Asks Defeat Tydings, O'Connor

Roosevelt Continues Party Purge in Maryland and New York

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—President Roosevelt called Tuesday for the defeat of Senator Millard F. Tydings of Maryland and Representative John O'Connor of New York in the coming Democratic primaries.

Answering a press conference question the executive read, and issued as his own statement, a recently published editorial from the New York Evening Post which said that Tydings was attempting to regain nomination "with the Roosevelt prestige and the money of his conservative Republican friends."

O'Connor, chairman of the House Rules committee, in a statement issued through his office here said:

"Like Senator O'George, too, I accept the challenge. The voters in the Sixteenth Congressional district alone will decide who will represent them in the House of Representatives. The president lives in the Twenty-sixth district and 'Ham' Fish is his congressman."

O'Connor said that he expected to answer the president in a nationwide broadcast, probably Wednesday night.

The president's action in naming Tydings and O'Connor as congressional candidates whose renomination he opposes because of what he considers a lack of sympathy with the New Deal had been expected.

International Boundary—North American Style

A BIG commercial transport plane was flying from Cleveland to Detroit the other day. Taking the shortest route, it swung northwest across Lake Erie, flew over a sizable corner of Ontario, and then crossed the Detroit river and glided down to a landing at the Detroit airport.

One of the passengers was a young man who recently spent upwards of a year in Germany with the branch office of an American firm. When he got out of the plane, he remarked: "That was the most thrilling thing that has happened since I got back to America."

"What, this flight?" asked an acquaintance. "No," said the young man. "The way we flew over the international boundary without noticing it. We crossed from the United States, flew over Canada, then flew back—and nobody said a word. That is the sort of thing that couldn't happen in Europe. Planes don't cross the international boundaries there, not without a lot of negotiations and formality. They go far out of their way to avoid flying over a little strip of foreign territory. If they don't the pursuit planes would go after them."

Which is just another way of saying that we who live in North America never realize how lucky we are—until we see what we would be up against if the European system prevailed over here.

But perhaps it isn't entirely luck, after all. When you come to think of it there is nothing to prevent the United States and Canada from trusting each other and glaring sullenly across the border in the European manner—nothing except the fact that each nation uses good sense and neighborly forbearance.

The United States, for instance, could easily claim that it "needs" the raw materials which Canada has. It could argue that unless it "controlled" the supply of these things its whole economy would be endangered. And it could go ahead and lay plans for the conquest of the Dominion.

Canada, on the other hand, could point out that its liberty was endangered by the colossus to the south. It could complain about the disruptive influence of American visitors—those C.I.O. organizers who have disturbed Ontario's premier, for example—and it could close the border with patrols, forts, and so on.

The situation that would result would be every bit as logical as the situation which is commonplace on almost every European border.

That peaceful boundary between the United States and Canada is, as the young traveler remarked, an immensely thrilling thing. But it doesn't exist by accident.

It is what it is because the people of the two countries have chosen to act sensibly.

Carte du Jour

THE Italians seem to be getting all kinds of bright ideas these days. First it was the liberation of the neck from the tight-fitting collar, and now it is the elimination of the restaurant-goer from the menu studded with foreign words and phrases.

The Fascist policy-formers in the field of public feeding have declared that "exotic and foreign" names must go. The official explanation is that the government wants to discourage snobbery, but it looks from here more like a simple move to intensify the affection of the people for its government.

The "exotic" names that fall within the scope of the edict include "hot dog," "roast beef," and the extraordinary labels that have been affixed to various cocktails. The thought of a hot dog going under any other name is little distressing, and what Italian names "Manhattan," "Bronx," and "Platter's Punch" will assume staggers the imagination. "Roast beef" a froure, might be changed to the international label "roast-biff."

Anyway, it's a good idea. Some American candidate for political office might do well for himself by pledging war on the American menus. Platform: "Potage paysanne, pommes frites, pasta asciutta must go!"

Arthritis, Rheumatic Conditions Form Second Largest Cause of Disability

People who used to talk about rheumatism have not learned to speak of this condition as arthritis. Nevertheless, there must still be recognized a difference between chronic rheumatism, gout, chronic rheumatic arthritis, and various types of inflammations which are rheumatic in character.

The specialists indicate all sorts of classifications of arthritis which are only confusing to the average man, since these classifications are based largely on the portions of the body affected, the nature of the infection, and the changes that take place in the tissues of the body that are concerned.

Today it is recognized that rheumatic conditions and arthritis are probably the second largest cause of disability among human beings, being exceeded in their incidence only by the respiratory diseases, including coughs and colds.

There are, of course, many physicians who are not convinced that arthritis is caused by germs. There are others who feel certain that germs are invariably present. There are some physicians who feel that arthritis is largely due to factors associated with the digestion and absorption of food, and there are still others who are convinced that the glands are the most important factor in this disease.

Methods of treatment when applied, therefore, are associated with all these different factors. There are many experts in the diagnosis and treatment of rheumatic diseases who are convinced that the circulation of the blood in this disease is the most important factor, and that for this reason massage is beneficial in many cases.

The condition commonly called rheumatoid arthritis, or the rheumatoid syndrome, has certain definite characteristics. It is believed that it is the result of many different causative factors, including invasion by germs in the body, disturbances of the circulation, and inflammation in the tissues.

Sometimes the first manifestation is the sudden inflammation of a joint, and gradually the swelling and inflammation of other joints. Pain in the joint is not infrequent.

As a result of failure to use the muscles and tissues around the painful joint, these may become somewhat wasted and thinner. The chief signs of inflammation are always pain, limitation of movement, and swelling. Much attention has been paid to the

This sweet world needs two things, age. The other is the older mind, wise with experience and remembering caution. But each is useless without the other.

Lionel is a growing boy. He knows far more than his daddy does. Of course, in ten years or so he will be surprised, as Mark Twain once said, "at the amount of learning his father had picked up in the interval." Meaning that in time his father will be appreciated, after sonny cuts his own away-back teeth.

It is too bad that today's living separates parents and children, but it does. A hundred years ago children knew most of the problems of parents, and vice versa. The family got behind the wheel and all pushed together.

Today's parents and children are playing a game of tag on opposite sides of the court. The children with their school and their sports, fresh from the ever-changing theories of text books and social laws. Parents with their practical experience, and pre-arranged ideas. Too bad, but it is so and we can't change it.

When pressure is brought to bear finally, how unfair for a smart young fellow to be taking orders from mope-backs, thinks Lionel, when they haven't an idea what it's all about.

HAYWIRE HOUSE

BY EDWIN RUTT

COPYRIGHT, 1938, NEA SERVICE, INC.

Yesterday, shooting their way into the Restatorium, Bull Griffin and Tony Spaldini announce they are going to stay for the night.

CHAPTER IX

A COMPLETE silence greeted Mr. Griffin's announcement. Kinks finally broke it.

"Well, gee," he began, "I don't know whether . . ."

Sally stopped him. Sally was a girl who missed none of the tricks. And since she'd been chivied into the hotel business, she was going to be in it. And how. She glanced upward toward the Harknesses. The Harknesses were retreating. Evidently Mrs. Harkness, somewhat stunned, had decided to obey Mr. Griffin's peremptory order to "beat it."

"Very well," Sally said, in a business-like voice. "You can stay here. Our rates are $6 a day per person."

"Six . . . huh?"

Sally saw that an explanation was in order.

"This," said Sally, "is the Pennington-Parker Restatorium. A place—she threw Kinks a severe glance—"for rest and relaxation."

"Well," Mr. Griffin decided, "it's oke wit' me. I could go fer some rest. In a big way."

"Our rates," said Sally, who hadn't taken her eye off the ball, "are $6 a day per person."

"But if she thought that this was going to throw Bull Griffin for a loss, she had mistaken her man. Mr. Griffin expertly shifted his gun from his right hand to his left, dug into his pocket and produced a roll of money that would have choked a hippopotamus. He pecked off a $100 bill.

"Dere you are," he said. "Dat's fer da two of us fer a week. Keep da change an' buy yourself a aeroplane."

Sally took the money dazedly. "You—you mean you're actually going to pay us?" she gasped. "Without a—fuss?"

MR. GRIFFIN was insulted. "Sure," he said. "Watcha tink I am, a deadbeat?"

"But you've got guns and . . ."

"Aw, we ain't tough, lady," interrupted Mr. Griffin affably. "Only wit' mugs like da Little Cheese."

"But I don't see why you should want to stay in a place like this."

"Well now look, lady," said Bull, in the voice of one who addresses the primary grades. "It's like dis: Me an' da Little Cheese usta be pals. Dat wuz before I'm wised up to vot a dirty, lyin', double-crossin' little weasel he is. But two weeks ago I'm wised."

"What wised you?" said Sally, who was beginning to learn the patter. "Aw," said Bull, "me an' da Little Cheese is in da same rack—er—line of business. Poultry. You know, chickens an' eggs. Only his territory's Queens an' I got da Bronx. An' everyting was oke-doke till two weeks ago he comes up on da Bronx an' tries to cut in on me. Well, dat makes me boin. Things like dat don't go wid me. His face darkened and he trotted out a gem gleaned from his vicarious reading. "I don't brook no interference."

"I get it," said Kinks. "You and the Little Cheese are having a war."

"Dat's right," said Bull. "I'm gittin' him an' he's gittin' me. Only he ain't, see? But tonight me an' Tony has business in Noo Haven. Well, a couple of da Cheese's boys is hangin' around da Bronx an' dey sees us go. So dey follies us. Dere's a little shootin' off an' on an' we slides off da main road toward dis place to give 'em da slip. But we ain't quick enough. Dere right on our tail an' comin' down dis road dey plugs our back tire. So we pull in here. An da only reason dey ain't still shootin' at dis house is we hit one of 'em through da window. Dat leaves two against one so dey takes it on da lim. Get it, lady?"

"Yes," said Sally. "But if they've gone why do you want to stay? And why did you say at first that it was to be for just overnight and then pay us for a week?"

A CRAFTY expression appeared upon Bull's rugged face.

"Well," he said, "I got to tink in. Dem guys is gonna beat it back to da Cheese an' spill wot's happened. Da Cheese is never gonna figger us to stay here. So wot do we do? We lays low here an' da Cheese don't know where we are. Den, after a little, Tony an' me takes a trip to Queens. Da Cheese ain't suspectin' nuttin' an' dey ain't nuttin' to it. We pulls our rods an'—bam! Da Little Cheese goes fer a ride all smothered in chrysanthemums." Mr. Griffin leered in gloating anticipation. "I'll send 'em to him meself, dam!" if I won't."

Sally nodded. "I think that's a very brilliant plan, Mr. Griffin. Stay here just as long as you want. Come along now, I'll show you your room."

On the following afternoon there was a little trouble with Mrs. Harkness. Mrs. Harkness was not partial to Mr. Griffin and Mr. Spaldini.

"We're leaving tonight," she told Sally. "I don't know what kind of a place this is. Those men are rough, loud and coarse."

SHE had elected to deliver this edict in the living room where Mr. Harkness was tampering contentedly with a light wire. And before Sally could reply Mr. Harkness spoke, most unexpectedly.

"I refuse to leave this house," he said.

Mrs. Harkness whirled on him. Were her ears betraying her? "Alvin Harkness, what do you mean?"

"Just," said Mr. Harkness, splicing wire expertly, "that I'm not going anywhere else. I like Mr. Griffin. He's interested in my idea for a revolver that shoots by electricity. My mind is made up, Elsie. We stay. That is final."

And the worm, having turned, prevailed for perhaps the first time in his life.

Two quiet days followed. Mr. Griffin's car had been incarcerated in the barn. Messrs. Griffin and Spaldini were spending the time at pinocle. Mr. Harkness, drunk with victory, was electrifying the mounted animal heads with a kind of reckless abandon. The Lord was in his Heaven and all was oke in his world.

On the afternoon of the third day Kinks sat in the kitchen watching Sally make biscuits.

"All is well on the Rappahannock," he said. "Peace and serenity walk the land. Which seems a propitious moment, Miss Pennington, to ask you when you intend to marry me?"

Before Sally could frame a scathing reply Mrs. Clippstack clattered into the kitchen.

"See here," she panted. "Mrs. Clippstack. 'I don't know what things are comin' to. There's a lunatic in the front yard takin' rabbits out of a hat.'"

A Book a Day

By Bruce Catton

They Cleaned Up an Ill Vision—About Empire-Builders Despite Themselves

Oscar Lewis displays little reverence for great names in "The Big Four" (Knopf, $4.50), his study of the men who built the Central Pacific railroad. He presents the famous west coast empire-builders—Stanford, Crocker, Hopkins and Huntington—not as men of great vision, but rather as ordinary traders who got in on the ground floor of a good thing in spite of themselves.

For the Central Pacific, western half of the first transcontinental railroad, was not conceived by any of these men. An engineer named Theodore Judah was the man really responsible for it. He dreamed of it, surveyed its route, got the necessary legislation through Congress, rounded up the cash, persuaded the "big four" to get in on it almost against their will—and would, almost certainly, have bought the four of them out long before the line was finished, if sudden death had not removed him from the scene.

The Central Pacific was more profitable to build than to operate. Huge government subsidies, plus the partners' canny way of letting construction contracts to themselves, made the job immensely lucrative. There were obstacles in the way, of course, and the partners did display a driving force in overcoming them; yet the empire-builder tradition does not stand up very well under Mr. Lewis' dispassionate recital of facts.

It all makes an extremely readable book, and an enlightening one to boot. The big four were among the last, and most noted, members of the public-landed gang. This account of what they did and how they did it is an interesting proof that the atmosphere of American capitalism has changed for the better, after all, in the last generation or two.

What right has yesterday to look today in the face?

Actually it is seldom as bad as this, but it makes a point. The truth is that much parental failure lies in the fact that parents are actually intimidated by the superb sureness of their offspring. And because modern children are overly-given to disparaging yesterday's wisdom, as though yesterday was a lost cause, and today's mad chase after dear-knows what, the only game worth having, Youth is fine, but it is riding a fearfully high horse just now.

On the other hand, stodgy, set parents should get going. They better look themselves over and make a few changes.

But about our know-it-all youngsters and what to do? Well, your guess is quite as good as mine. I might suggest that the parent who knows he is right, put enough interesting personality behind his authority to make it pular with his family. And enough power, too. I should stop thinking that the kids know it all.

In Hollywood

The Sun Blazes Down on Gunga Din and the Boys Keep Blazing Away

(Bill Porter, of NEA Service's Hollywood staff, is conducting the Hollywood column while Paul Harrison is on vacation.)

By BILL PORTER
NEA Service Staff Correspondent
HOLLYWOOD.—On location with the "Gunga Din" company at Lone Pine, Calif., at the foot of Mount Whitney.

Two hundred and fifty miles from the nearest movie studio, the company was still within the city limits of Los Angeles. The desert land on which the camp was pitched was purchased by the city to get water rights.

All the Hindus, Hawaiians, and other brown-skinned extras in Hollywood have worked in "Gunga Din," and more than 250 men live at the camp.

Every morning at 5 o'clock a bugler creeps from his cabin, blows mess, which is the only call he knows, and heads for the shower room. The camp is soon alive with natives and white men making their way to the showers, clad only in bath towels, which are more clothes than most of them will wear the rest of the day.

Breakfast over, the men go in buses a couple of miles farther back into the hills, where the movie-set village of Tinseltown nestles in a setting closely resembling the foothills of the Himalayas.

Lesson in Making Up Five Men at a Time

Now begins the job of transforming 250 men into Indians.

Five men at a time are seated on a turntable. The table turns slowly while two make-up men with spray guns spray on a brown make-up. Each day less and less make-up is necessary, for the sun in that country is intense, and has given most of the company a natural tan.

When all the natives are made up, the cameras are set up and a grand old-fashioned game of cowboys and Indians gets under way—but the cowboys are dressed in the uniforms of British troops, and the Indians are the India variety.

Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., Cary Grant, Victor MacLaglen, and some native troops are trying to hold the fort against the attack of a band of outlaws.

Blank cartridges were passed around and at the command of "action" mounted outlaws dash up and down the street shooting at the British soldiers.

diers, who have taken a stand on the roof tops.

The noise of the blanks is terrific, and every now and then Cary Grant lights a stick of "dynamite" and hurls it at the attackers. The sticks do not explode, for they are only pieces of rubber hose. The explosions will be made back in Hollywood and dubbed in.

"You're A Better Man Than I Am . . ."

Along about 11 a. m. the heat reaches its peak intensity, and for several weeks has averaged between 110 and 115 degrees.

One poor native was assigned to the task of cutting the lines of communication, which meant he had to climb a telegraph pole. As he reached the top of the pole he was to get shot and drop limp over the crosspiece of the pole.

The action wasn't difficult, but it happened that the pole was in the background of every shot made that day, so the native spent the whole day hanging from the top of that pole in the blistering sun.

Gunga Gets Service

Back on the set after a fine lunch, Sam Jaffe, who plays the title role, was sitting in the shade of a rock, clad in a "twisty piece of rag," and his goatskin water bag lay on the ground nearby.

A grip was busily placing a fresh jug of water on the drinking fountain. Jaffe's valet stood by the fountain with a water glass in his hand, waiting to draw his master a drink.

The Hollywood influence is noticeable in the camp, for the three streets which house the white extras are named Hollywood Boulevard, Sunset, and Vine. The street where the natives live is called Olvera Street, after Los Angeles' famous Mexican street.

Italy Manufactures Own Substitutes for Imports

By NEA Service
ROME.—Fura da Sel Fura da Sel! That is the new watch word in Italy. It means, "Do it yourself!"
It is the slogan for Italian autarchy—for the attempt to make Italy free from the necessity of importing food and raw materials by making intensive use of what it has within its own empire and by inventing substitutes for things it has been importing.
The need for autarchy was impressed upon Mussolini when the League of Nations imposed sanctions upon Italy as a punishment for its war on Ethiopia. Prior to that Mussolini had no thoughts about autarchy. Indeed, he felt Italy must be an importing nation because of her need for combustible oils, coal, iron, copper, wool, rubber and cotton. But since 1935 he has gone all out for autarchy.
First—Because Italy hasn't her foreign exchange necessary for extensive purchases abroad.
Second—Because, in case of a great war, Italy cannot afford to rely upon imports for her primary needs.
"Economic servitude means political servitude," Mussolini told his countrymen.
Ynter Power Replaces Coal
Tackling the fuel problem, the Italians developed as much as possible their best coal fields which are in Sardinia. It is hoped eventually to produce 3,000,000 tons annually, but this would only cover one-fourth of Italy's needs. So hydro-electric power is being intensively developed in northern Italy where the mountain streams have made possible the electrification of the railways there and also developed power for factories.
Like Germany, Italy is going in not only for increased production of artificial silk, but also artificial rubber and wool.
Count Volpi, president of the confederation of manufacturers charged with part of the autarchy problem, recently gave out figures showing the difference between 1934 and 1937. In the latter year compared with the former, production in various commodities had increased as follows: coal 400 per cent; lignite, 150; bauxite (from which aluminum is extracted), 100; lead ore, 250; kaolin, 300; zinc, 30; mercury, 450; benzol, 225; paper cellulose, 400; benzine, 210; hemp, 65; flax, 400; artificial silk, 100.
As a result of some of these efforts, imports of raw wool and cotton have fallen by half.
But these percentage figures can be deceiving. Thus, the production of iron ore increased by 100 per cent. But as the original amount was small, 100 per cent increase did not come anywhere near meeting Italy's needs. Nevertheless, the government feels that it is on its way toward self-sufficiency.

For instance... Italian scientists made this artificial wool bathing suit from about 25 quarts of cow's milk.
reported that they found no evidence to support the charge.

One Man Is Killed, FBI Agent Wounded

Officers Had Maintained Vigil at Parked Auto at Memphis

MEMPHIS.—(AP)—One man was killed and another believed to be a department of justice agent wounded in a gun duel here Tuesday. An effort was being made to ascertain whether the shooting had any connection with the search for Floyd Hamilton and Ted Walters, southwestern desperadoes.

J. E. Clegg, agent in charge of the department of justice office here, announced an hour later that the wounded man was Agent Leo Nully, 28. Nully suffered a wound in the right thigh. His condition was not serious.

Clegg declined to volunteer information until after he had a chance to contact J. Edgar Hoover. The name of the slain man was not revealed.
Reports were circulated that police called federal agents after receiving a report that a man resembling Hamilton had been seen getting out of an automobile at a downtown rooming house.

Federal agents located the parked automobile. While they were inspecting the machine a heavy-set man walked up, said "this has gone far enough," opened fire. The fire was returned and the man fell fatally wounded.

He died ten minutes after an ambulance rushed him to a hospital. Federal officers fingerprinted him in an effort to establish his identity.

The automobile was a convertible Packard roadster.

Agent Nully with Agent Taylor had started a watch beside the parked automobile from the time the tip from police was received.

When the heavy set dark haired man pulled his weapon, there were repeated sounds of gunfire.

The shooting occurred at the intersection of Wellington street and Union avenue, about a block west of the Commercial Appeal building.

The operator of the rooming house said the man fatally wounded Tuesday had moved there Sunday. He said that he had given him the name as Fred Truesdale and said that he came from Alabama.

Two Ex-Convicts May Face Death

Captured After Kidnaping to Obtain an "Escape" Automobile

GRAND RAPIDS, Minn.—(AP)—Two ex-convicts from Missouri, one seriously wounded, Tuesday night faced a possible death penalty for a kidnaping which officers believed was perpetrated only to obtain an escape automobile.

Otis J. Meredith, 21, lay in a hospital here, guarded by a federal agent who listened for every word he said, while John Couch, 23, was held in jail.

They were captured Monday night by two federal bureau of investigation agents and two deputy sheriffs who found them cleaning fish at the farm home of Charles Root, Meredith's father-in-law, in the brush country east of Effie, about 45 miles north of here.

Meredith was dropped by pistol and shotgun fire before he had run 60 feet, while Couch quietly submitted. Meredith's young wife and her father saw the capture.

Miss Peggy Gross, St. Louis socialite, and Daniel Cox, Fahey, Jr., St. Louis architect, the kidnaping victims, were seized as they sat in a car at St. Louis early Saturday and bound with wire when they were banded in woods north of Minneapolis, as their abductors continued their flight in Fahey's car.

Officers believed the Missouri men wanted Fahey's car only because the St. Louis area became "too hot," and they took Fahey and the girl because they did not want the car reported stolen.

District Attorney Victor Anderson in St. Paul, who filed kidnap charges against Meredith and Couch, said he probably would demand the death penalty, which is possible when victims are harmed. Fahey said he was struck in the face with a gun butt, and both he and the girl were bound with wire.

Robert Herndon, in charge of the FBI office at St. Paul, said the suspects had confessed the kidnaping and a series of crimes in the Southwest.

Charges of transporting a stolen automobile across state lines were filed against Meredith, Couch and two women companions at Dallas, Texas, Aug. 11. The women were arrested in St. Louis last week.

Meredith told federal men here he was born in Linwood (Jefferson county) Ark., and had lived in Kirkwood, Mo., a number of years. He was sentenced to prison for an attempted robbery and released in 1933. Couch was sentenced to a reformatory in 1933 and later escaped. He was sentenced to prison when recaptured and was paroled last June.

Hollywood has frequently been accused of mangling Broadway plays when transcribing them for the screen. They tell us though, that the fault lies less with Hollywood than with the censor boards throughout the world.

Movie producers are hog-tied by taboos, by police officials, reporters and amateur critics.

In converting "Boy Meets Girl" to the screen, the producers were warned by the Hays office that they must not show any suggestion of "Sue's fainting or collapsing because of imminent matrimony—and the best gag situations in the script went into the limbo.

All humorous references to Congressmen, Supreme Court Justices and other public officials had to be omitted from the shooting script of "First Lady."

Samuel Goldwyn had to submit to official and unofficial pressure and to shelve a story about political refugees which he had planned to film. Paramount owns a reportedly magnificent anti-war screen play by O'Flaherty which may never reach the screen until the bars are let down and there are innumerable other instances of suppression of ideas in the motion picture business.

Twisting Situations
One of the most flagrant cases of "playing to screen distortion" is "The Amazing Dr. Clitterhouse." In the stage version the doctor, who experienced with crime research and became involved in murder, pleaded insanity so as to evade punishment by the law. The motion picture producers, code, however, doesn't permit the showing on the screen of a criminal evading punishment. So for the screen version, the doctor's entire character had to be changed. He had to be actually proved insane.

Other taboos this film had to observe: the criminal couldn't be shown wearing gloves because it would teach crooks how to evade discovery by covering fingerprints. They couldn't be shown overpowering a night watchman on which an imprudent scene demanded. And an acetylene torch was considered contraband while a camera was around.

Woes Aplenty
I was shown a letter sent by the president of a women's organization, which took up another aspect of the film going.

"Every theatre in the United States should be divided. The women should sit on one side and the men on the other. The darkened interior of movie houses creates a spell for unguided persons," she wrote.

Talkie producers don't take chances snubbing a lady crusader.

Paper was made by the ancient Egyptians, the rocks after Alexander, and later the Romans, by overlaying thin strips of the stem or pith of the papyrus plant at right angles. Soaking pressing and drying followed.

John Tyler holds the record for having more children than any other President of the United States—14.

STORIES IN STAMPS

Where Ice Cools The Equator

OUT of the depths of Africa came reports 100 years ago of an extraordinary mountain, soaring above the matted growth of the jungle to an ice-clad summit within a few degrees of the equator. Some scientists met the rumor with derision. No one investigated.

So the mystery of mighty Kilimanjaro remained a secret until finally in 1881 Karl von der Decken, a German scientist, confirmed the report about the mountain made by Johann Rebmann, an English missionary, 13 years before. The Paris Geographical Society conferred a medal on Rebmann and his associate, Krapf Ludwig. Thereafter interest in the peak rose keenly.

Several expeditions sought its summit. Charles New, a missionary, reached the snow line at 14,000 feet before he was forced to descend, and Joseph Thompson of the Royal Geographical Society was the first to work his way around the north side. Forty years after it had been first sighted, Dr. Hans Meyer and Ludwig Purtscheller stood upon Kilimanjaro's summit. Since that date, 1889, a number of explorers have scaled the peak.

Kilimanjaro rises abruptly from the plains and culminates actually in two peaks, one 17,500 and one 19,728 feet high. The peak of Kibo, the tallest, has a crater over 6000 feet in circumference and 600 feet deep. Kilimanjaro is shown here on a stamp of Tanganyika, British protectorate since the World War. It was formerly German territory. (Copyright, 1938, NEA Service, Inc.)

Saturday Is the Last Day to Enter District Softball Tourney

Entry List Must Be Filed by Then

Big Crowd Sees Games Tuesday, Ashdown to Play Here Thursday

Softball teams wishing to enter the district tournament to be held in Hope Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday of next week must file their player-list not later than Saturday noon of this week, Earl W. Erion, WPA recreational supervisor, announced Wednesday.

As soon as the deadline expires, a drawing will be held in the office of the Hope Star to determine which teams will play the opening rounds.

The tournament will be held on a single elimination basis. If more than eight teams enter, the first game beginning at 6 p.m. and continuing each hour until a total of four games are played.

If more than 12 teams enter, play will be held both afternoon and night in order to complete the tournament in three days. The winner and runner-up will share in part of the gate receipts, the money to be used in sending those teams to Little Rock to take part in the state tournament.

Ralph Cornelius has been named head umpire and will call balls and strikes. He will be assisted by A. D. Russell and possibly a third umpire.

Malvern First Entry

The fast American Legion team of Malvern was the first to enter. Their entry list of players was received several days ago. The 282 service station of Prescott also has entered, with possibly two other teams from Prescott to enter.

The Bruner-Ivory team of Hope is almost a certain entry. Southern Cafe, Williams Lumber company and the Alton CCC Camp also are considering entering teams. Leo Compton of Hope announced that he probably would enter an independent team.

Three or possibly four teams from Texarkana have obtained entry blanks and are expected to file their list of players before the deadline Saturday. The district is comprised of 11 counties, and notices have been sent to each county in regard to the tournament here. Any team may enter by posting $3.

Ashdown Here Thursday

Arrangements were completed Wednesday morning with the Ashdown girls team to play the J. C. Penney girls team of Hope at 8:30 o'clock Thursday night at Fair park.

The "M" System team and the Hope Travelers will play the opening game Thursday night at 7:30 o'clock.

The largest crowd of the season witnessed three games Tuesday night, the feature contest being between the J. C. Penney girls team of Hope and the Nevada trotter team of Prescott.

Prescott won, 18 to 7. Mary Evelyn Whitworth hit a home run in the fourth inning of the locals. The home runs were hit by the Prescott girls.

The score by innings:

Prescott— 5 4 1 2 6 — 18
Hope — 4 2 0 1 0 — 7

The Williams Lumber company team marked up its seventh victory of the season Tuesday night by defeating the Geo. W. Robison team, 12 to 6.

Zebra Grid Heroes Leave for College

PINE BLUFF — Pine Bluff will be well represented on Southern and Southwestern gridirons the coming fall, with seven of last year's championship Zebra eleven due to play college football along with nine other former players.

C. W. McGilberry, 1936 all-state back, ruled ineligible to play in the latter games of last season because of his age, left Tuesday for the University of Alabama where Hallert Hughes, former all-state man here, will be senior quarterback.

Guy Boyd, center, and Ogden Bolin, halfback, plan to enter the University of Arkansas.

The Hope Basket company team shut out the Highway Department in a third game, 3 to 0. The score by innings:

Mississippi State will be Earnest Kennedy, end, and Kelly Ross, guard, who are now at work on the campus.

Now working in the oil fields of Louisiana are Bill Phillips, star end, and Earl Rivers, fullback who will enter Centenary. Ed and Lester Carey and Thomas Hooker are undecided where they will enter school.

Francis (Dutch) King and Leroy Goldberg, former all-state high school players here, who later played for the University of Alabama, are reported planning to enter an Arkansas college.

Texas Thornton, 1935 all-state center, is expected to enter Ouchieita, playing under Coach Walton along with two other 1935 team mates here, Frank Reed and Virgil Benson.

Tulane's line-up will again include End Ralph Wenzel of Perda, former all-state Zebra lineman, Campbell Jarvis will be in Navy uniform.

Bill Kennedy, former Zebra, will captain the Hendrix College Warriors the coming season.

Donald Hutson, star end of the Green Bay Packers, will be Pine Bluff's only contribution to professional football the coming season, but more than half a dozen ex-Zebras will coach in high schools and universities.

CHICAGO — National Intercircuit polo championships will be held at the Oak Brook club here August 28 to September 11.

BOSTON — Elbert Fletcher, Bro's first baseman, is one of the few big league stars who donned a major league uniform before getting his high school diploma. Fletcher, a resident of Milton, Mass., a Boston suburb, took his textbooks with him when he went to St. Petersburg with the club in 1934. By special permission he kept up with his classes and obtained his diploma in June.

Bob Feller of the Cleveland Indians followed the same procedure.

East side didn't go near a gymnasium for years, and once when I asked him about his neglect in training, he explained: "The last time I was in a gym a big fellow blackened my eye. I've never been back, a bad place, that gym."

Rosenbloom had a livered chauffeur for years—a little Italian. I once asked the driver if his employer always paid him.

"He does not," was the reply. "When I ask him for my money he takes the cap off my head and says: 'You get in the back seat and I'll drive! What are you going to do with a bloke like that?'"

Rosenbloom fought his manager, Frank Bachman, between rounds as hard as he ever waged a war against an opponent. He believed in keeping ahead of his pilot financially. They spent rest periods arguing about the amount Snaxie Maxie would get on that particular night.

Rosenbloom did the bulk of his training in night clubs. He walked a fair damsel off the floor of the old Rendezvous club on Broadway one night, explaining: "Listen, honey, I've got to run over and fight a guy. I've shipped Leo Lomski around at Madison Square Garden, returned to the club without so much as taking a shower, and picked up where he left off.

He did his road work behind milk wagons in the wee hours.

"Break, Rosenbloom, Break!" shouted an irate customer at the Garden one night.

"Aw, let him alone," said Joe Frisco, the dancer, seated beside him. "Maxie's catching up on his sleep."

Maxie Rosenbloom wouldn't do as a model for a young glemman, but, as Dave Shude once remarked: "He was so wrong that he was right."

Anyway the chances are that they will never have to have a benefit for him.

Maxie, So Wrong He Was Right, Winds Up in Movies, Meeting Good Boxers at 34

BY HARRY GRAYSON
Sports Writer, NEA Service

Maxie Rosenbloom will be 34 years old next month, but he held young Ezzelle Bob Pastor even in 10 rounds before 30,000 persons in Hollywood the other night.

That out of the way, the Harlem Harlequin retired to his cafe not far from the arena where he is his own master of ceremonies. The joint was packed.

Rosenbloom gets $1,000 a week in pictures.

They used to call him a clown. Immediately after his bout with Ezzelle, Maxie announced that he was through with the ring. Which is as it should be, considering his years, but few fighters have been as entertaining in the squared circle as the New Yorker.

Rosenbloom has been one of the truly great fighters of history although a sea-rewy, unorthodox style kept him from being one of the more magnetic box office attractions. He has fought them all since BEZ, which is when Dempsey outpunched Tom Gibbons and flattened Firpo. He has done many a fine painting job in his day.

Rosenbloom, no doubt has made more money since he caught on in the film colony than he earned in his heyday. Money meant nothing to Snaxie Maxie, however. No matter what he got he would promptly stick it into a new automobile or toss it away in a crap game.

Dave Shude never came close to beating Rosenbloom, but was luckier with the galloping dominos, and after one of their meetings wound up with the entire purse and Snaxie Maxie's new coonskin coat.

Like the late Harry Greb, whom he fought and lived like, Rosenbloom believed in keeping in shape by fighting. The product of New York's lower

Make the BREWMASTER'S TEST and you'll know that FALSTAFF pays MORE to give you MORE

WHEN it comes to making the best beer, you can't skimp on materials. It would be far easier and cheaper for Falstaff to use less materials per bottle—but that wouldn't be real Falstaff.

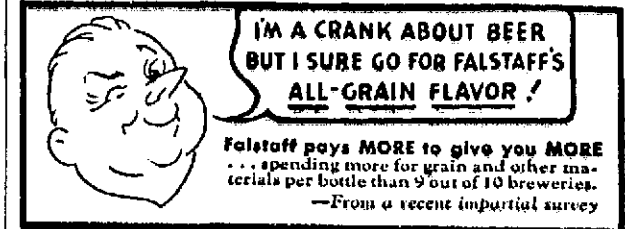

Why not be your own Jury of Three on this beer question? Make the Brewmaster's Test and learn for yourself that everything we say about Falstaff is true.

Look at Falstaff! You're looking at beer that's as clear as noontime sun. Pick up a newspaper and read it through that sparkling clarity. That's because Falstaff is double-filtered and aged the slow, expensive way that ordinary beers can't afford.

Smell Falstaff! Get a whiff of that rich, clean aroma of sun-ripened grain. It takes the finest materials (Falstaff spends more for them per bottle than 9 out of 10 breweries) to produce the rare aroma which is the hallmark of the finest beers.

Taste Falstaff! Lift your glass and enjoy that full-bodied flavor and thirst-quenching goodness. Here's beer that's lighter... a brew that cheers you up and cools you off like a morning breeze!

Join the swing to better beer that sold 194,000,000 bottles of Falstaff last year. Falstaff Brewing Corporation, St. Louis—Omaha—New Orleans.

I'M A CRANK ABOUT BEER BUT I SURE GO FOR FALSTAFF'S ALL-GRAIN FLAVOR!

Falstaff pays MORE to give you MORE... spending more for grain and other materials per bottle than 9 out of 10 breweries.

No Rich Deserts

Hot weather is no time to be baking cakes and pies, and neither is it the time to eat very many rich desserts. Too many calories will mean a rise in body heat.

Hempstead county homemakers who have automatic refrigerators are taking advantage of them to prepare simple and cooling desserts. Even without a refrigerator, much of the work of preparation can be done early in the morning when it is cooler, and the dessert placed in the ice box until needed.

Miss Gertrude E. Conant, extension nutritionist, University of Arkansas, College of Agriculture, sends suggestions for some desserts that almost "get themselves," and are cool and refreshing.

Fairy Banquet Pudding

Make a soft custard of 1 pint milk, 1 egg and 1 cup of sugar, and ½ teaspoonful salt. Cook over hot water until it just sets the spoon then remove from the fire and add 2 tablespoons gelatin hydrated in 4 tablespoons cold water. Stir until the gelatin is dissolved and set aside to cool. Cut 12 marshmallows in small pieces with the scissors and add to the custard, also adding ½ cup cream whipped and ½ cup of chopped nuts. Stir occasionally to prevent the cream from rising. Serve cold, plain or with a chocolate sauce.

Cold Chocolate Sauce

1 cut brown sugar ¼ teaspoon salt
½ cup milk 2 tablespoons Cocoa

2 tablespoons butter
Add the cocoa and the salt to the sugar and mix well, then add the milk and butter and boil until the mixture thickens. Cool before serving.

Dried apricots are not expensive and have an appetizing tartness which makes a palatable addition to a summer meal.

Apricot Whip

One-half pound dried apricots washed and soaked over night in enough cold water to cover. Cook at the simmering temperature until the fruit is tender and then rub it through a colander or sieve. Add ½ cup of sugar to the pulp and stir until the sugar is dissolved and then reheat to the boiling point, and add 1 tablespoon hydrated gelatin. Beat the whites of

HOT WEATHER BILIOUSNESS

If you noticed that in hot weather your digestion and elimination seem to become torpid or lazy? Your food sours, forms gas, causes belching, heartburn, and a feeling of restlessness and irritability. Your tongue may be coated, your complexion bilious, and your bowel action sluggish or insufficient.

These are some of the symptoms of biliousness or so-called "torpid liver," so prevalent in hot climates. They call for calomel, or better still, Calotabs the nauseless calomel compound tablets that make calomel-taking a pleasure.

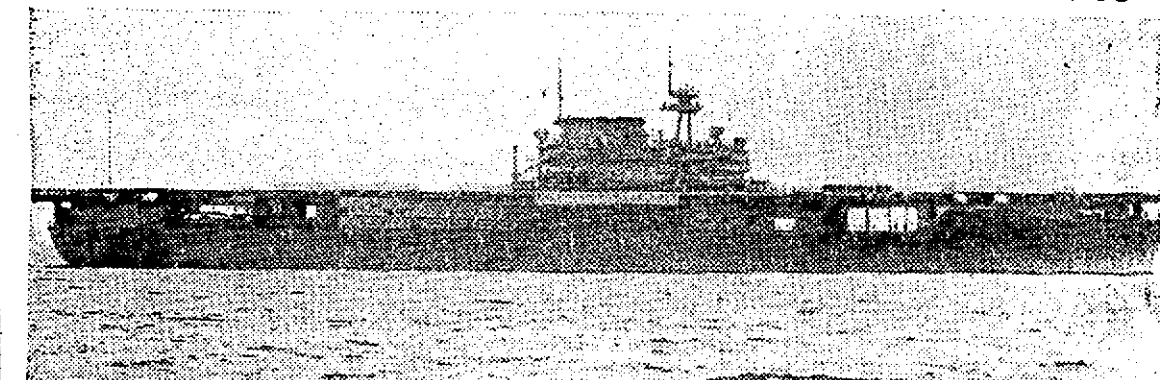

Calotabs give you the effects of calomel and salts combined, helping Nature to expel the sour, stagnant bile and washing it out of the system. One or two Calotabs at bedtime with a glass of water—let's all next morning your system feels clean and refreshed, your head is clear, your spirit bright, and you are feeling fine with a hearty appetite for breakfast. Eat what you wish and go about your work or pleasure.

Genuine Calotabs are sold only in checker-board (black and white) packages bearing the trade mark "Calotabs." Refuse imitations. Trial package only ten cents; family package twenty-five cents, at your dealer's. (Adv.)

Still honeymooning, the John Roosevelts—he is the youngest son of the President, she the former Anne Lindsay Clark—went a-fishing 20 miles off Bermuda and returned with an impressive haul, proudly displayed in the photo above. John caught five barracuda and a bonito and landed a shark. Anne hooked a twenty-two pound barracuda. "We hope Dad hears about this," commented young Roosevelt, since F. D. R. is something of fisherman himself.

Newest U. S. Plane Carrier Ends 'Shakedown' Cruise

Mammoth $19,000,000 "roost" for navy planes, Uncle Sam's newest aircraft carrier, the Enterprise, makes a striking picture above as she plows back to her berth in Hampton Roads, near old Point Comfort Beach, Va., after a "shakedown" cruise off the Virginia Capes. Laid down at the Newport News, Va., shipbuilding yards in 1934, the Enterprise has a displacement of 19,900 tons and a speed of 34 knots. Members of her crew, massed on the huge flight deck, are dwarfed in this picture.

2 eggs until stiff and pour over them the hot fruit pulpbeating until the mixture is stiff. Pour into molds, chill and serve with whipped cream or custard sauce. Do not add any flavor, as the apricots furnish the requisite fruit flavor.

Another simple dessert is as follows:

Complete of Apples
Peel and core one apple for each person. Make a syrup of 1 cup sugar and 1 cup of water, add the apples, cover and cook gently until the apples are soft. Drain and boil down the syrup until it is reduced by half, pour the syrup over the apples and cool.

At serving time fill the cores with jelly and cover the apples with whipped cream lightly sprinkled with chopped nuts.

Sponge Cake Pudding
Fill a buttered baking dish with 2 inch squares of stale sponge cake or a plain butter cake may be used. Beat 2 eggs, add 4 tablespoons sugar, and ½ teaspoon salt. Then add 1 cup of milk and pour the mixture over the sponge cake. Place in a pan of warm water and bake in a slow oven (300 degrees F.) for 30 minutes.

We, the Women

By Ruth Millett

In Own Field Each Sex Has Contempt for the Other.

Have you ever heard a woman praise her husband for being able to cook without pointing out that he has left the kitchen in a mess?

Well, we think women, especially professionally active women, ought to remember that when they start blaming men for their superior attitude toward women who step into the business world.

The latest protest was voiced in Budapest by a New York woman, Earline White, president of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, who denounced the fact that a woman has to be twice as good as a man to have an equal opportunity to hold an important job.

That statement is probably no exaggeration, but here should have been an "unless" qualification—unless she is willing to accept the job without an impressive and commanding title, and with less pay than a man would be offered.

LOOK AT THE MOTHER SEA LION AND HER... CUB, CALF, PUP, COLT.

WHICH WORD IS CORRECT?

ANSWER: A young sea lion is known as a pup. And, curiously enough, these babies have to be taught to swim by their mothers, and they are very reluctant to enter the water at first.

Behind the Scenes in Washington

By Rodney Dutcher

WASHINGTON — A real Russo-Japanese war, if it should come, will likely produce the most spectacular effective aerial bombardment and combat yet seen.

Tokio, as American army officers see it, would become the first capital of a major power to suffer a severe air bombardment.

It is less than 700 miles from Russia's Vladivostok to Tokio. Experts who believe that Tokio would be a prompt objective also envision suicide squadrons of Japanese taking off with loads of explosives and flying madly into Russian air fleets.

News of darkening of Japanese cities confirms belief that Tokio and other large centers are vulnerable.

What May Be in the Russian Mind

Diplomats and military men have supposed that the Changkufeng fighting would be kept localized, on the theory that Japan wants no war because of her Chinese involvement and that Russia has too much to worry about in Europe. This is mere deduction.

bringing is usually ignored, for every woman is convinced that no one has the understanding of a mother.

And his opinions on dress and beauty—even when followed—are done so with the attitude of a grown-up pampering a child.

Sure, women are treated like children in the business world, but men are treated like half-wits in the home.

tion. Aside from general background, all the State, War and Naval departments know is what they read in the newspapers—meaning the official versions from Tokio and Moscow.

Several bizarre theories as to the "real reason" behind the outbreak have gained wide credence in Washington. But the best Far Eastern experts are unwilling to go beyond suggesting as possibilities:

1. That Russia has sought to diffuse Japanese military energy and to take the heat off the Chinese. Chinese resistance might suddenly collapse—as Ethiopian resistance to Italian troops did—and Russia may have been warned of such a likelihood.

2. That Russia desired to test Japanese reaction and find out how weak or strong Japanese resistance would be.

3. That Russia, believing the point of maximum Japanese weakness may have been reached, prefers to strike before Japan can consolidate her position in China.

At any rate, Russian troops have moved into previously unoccupied territory of great strategic value and Japanese fought to drive them off. The Changkufeng hills dominate Japan's Tumen railroad, which runs into Manchukuo from the important new Korean port of Rashin. The Rashin-Tumen route is Japan's shortest route for getting troops and supplies into Manchukuo.

Treaty, Treaty, What Treaty? Mention of the alleged treaty with China on which Russia bases claim to the disputed territory brings skeptical grins from State Department officials, who never heard of such a treaty. They haven't even a map bearing the name Changkufeng—and they have many exhaustive maps. To Japanese, questioning existence of the treaty, Russia says: "Ask the Chinese."

Japan, warring on China, won't. One of the less-scrupulous sounding theories circulating in Washington is to the effect that Japan attacked Russians in a major engagement at the behest of Germany, as the prelude to a widely-feared German invasion of Czechoslovakia this month.

While renewed Berlin verbal blasts against the Czechs might break up this theory, enemy diplomats here say Japan won't stick her neck out just because Germany asked her. But they say many Japanese militarists would take on both Russia and China.

In New England, an earthquake that occurred in 1755 was attributed to the use of lightning rods in the community.

Proves Speeding Useless

VANCOUVER.—(AP)—Chief Constable W. W. Foster broke the law to show motorists they didn't save much time by speeding. He cut only three and three-quarter minutes from the usual traveling time when he ignored traffic regulations over four and one-half miles of city streets.
